

GREENFIELD INDUSTRIAL MEDAL NOMINATION

For Award in 2024

Criteria

- The Greenfield Industrial Medal recognises contributions of statistical science to all aspects of manufacturing industry, including design, engineering, production, purchasing and customer service. It is aimed at encouraging the application of statistical methods to industrial processes and is awarded for contributions to the effective application of statistical methods to the manufacturing and allied industries. The emphasis in making the award will be on effective application.
- Overall, the objective of the award is to encourage manufacturing companies to pay full attention to the great benefits of statistical methods. Examples of areas where the application of statistical methods can make substantial contributions to the management of manufacturing companies are total quality management, manpower and resource management, production control, purchasing and stock control, and sales forecasting, among many others.
- Submissions for the award may be supported by published papers and/or industrial reports for which publication in whole or in part is not restricted.

Please read through the Guidance Notes available at www.rss.org.uk/honours before completing the form. (The form text fields expand). Nominations are open between 1 May to 31 October each year.
